The Rocanville Cooperative Playschool

The Rocanville Cooperative Playschool would like to send out a bunch of "Thank You's" this month. We would like to thank the business community of Rocanville and area for all the wonderful donations for our christmas basket raffle. TD Bank for the use of their space and donation of supplies. Rocanville Co-op for the donation of ground beef for chilli. As well as the parents who donated time and chilli to our sale. We are so happy to have such a wonderfully supportive community. Secondly, we would like to say a HUGE thank you to the Rocanville Co-op for donating the laminate flooring for our new space. This is so appreciated and incredibly generous. Last but certainly not least, we want to send out a loving Thank you to Joan and Dennis Hack.

We have been in the farmers building for years and we sure

Thank You

Thank you,
We wish to thank the following for their kindness shown to us during Jeannine's illness;

Fundraiser for the Rocanville School Playground!

The playground committee is working on some fun and exciting fundraisers to take place in 2017 !!

Rocanville Playground Committee

The current wooden play structure is 30 plus years old and is beyond repair. Playground equipment is very, costly and we have been working hard at this but still have a long way to go.

This project will be funded solely by donations and fundraising efforts. Some of the fundraisers that are coming up include:
 Spring Family Bingo
 Hot lunches

This structure will bring joy to the community for many years to come! If you would like to make a donation, please send a cheque made out to Rocanville Playground

Committee to:

ARE YOU AT RISK?

Prediabetes is a condition where blood sugar levels are higher than normal, but not high enough to be diagnosed as diabetes.

You can have prediabetes or undiagnosed type 2 diabetes without having any obvious warning signs or symptoms.

Your pharmacist can perform a quick test to determine your risk. Knowing your risk can help you to make healthy choices now that will reduce your risk or even prevent you from developing diabetes.

Dealing with debt before (or during) retirement

Strategies to help reduce debt and keep your financial goals on track.

Baby Boomers-

One of the wealthiest generations in history are heading into retirement. They're ready to kick back and finally enjoy the fruits of their labors. Yet despite the lure of an early and active retirement, for many, the picture isn't as rosy as expected. In fact, a record number of retired or soon-to-be-retired Canadians owe more than ever before.

According to Statistics Canada, 70 percent of people aged 55 to 64 were carrying debt in 2012, an increase from 61 percent in 1999. In the over 65 crowd, debt load increased by 94 percent.

How did this happen? One contributing factor is that we're living longer; the average life expectancy of Canadians has grown by 246 years since 1921. There are simply more years of retirement to fund. The economic environment has also changed over the last few decades, leading many baby boomers to offer their children or grandchildren financial assistance, such as helping out with down payments to home or university tuition. On top of these changes, the 2008 financial crisis was tough on most investment portfolios.

Debt can be a source of stress during retirement, but there are ways to manage it. If you or someone you know is worried about debt, here are just a few strategies to consider.

Consolidating debt

Consolidation is often a feasible option, particularly if your debt is in the form of high-interest credit cards rather than a mortgage. Consolidating debt means using a lower-interest rate option, such as a line of credit or personal loan, to pay off a higher interest debt. A loan's regular payment schedule means you could repay debt much faster than by making minimum payments on your credit card.

Using home equity

A home equity line of credit could be a good way to help reduce the interest rate is lower than the rate on your current loans. A home equity line of credit can also offer you access to money to manage unexpected expenses, helping you avoid having to sell long-term investments to meet the short-term need.

Home downsizing or relocating.

Consider whether you need the size and space of your existing home in retirement. Can you afford to stay in an expensive urban center? A smaller, less expensive property or something in a less costly neighborhood may suit your needs just as well. Why not take a look at listings in other neighborhoods. Or attend open houses for smaller properties near you? You might be surprised by what you find!

Taking on a tenant

If your heart is set on staying in your current home, but you still have mortgage payments to make, you might want to consider the potential for rental income. Many urban areas have low rental vacancy rates, which could mean good rental income for you. But becoming a landlord is not as simple as just renting out a spare room or a basement apartment- you must adhere to zoning bylaws and consider tenant rights. It's a good idea to consult with a legal advisor to help you understand all you to know.

Working Part-time or delaying retirement.

If you are already retired, why not consider working part-time? It can be an excellent way to supplement your retirement income. Plus, work has an added bonus of keeping you engaged- you could learn new skills, gain a new sense of purpose and deepen your connection to your community. If you're still working, you could think about delaying retirement by a few years, or 'easing' in to retirement by reducing hours or shifting to contract

Helping protect assets from creditors.

While you are striving to pay off debts, you will want to ensure that your assets are protected. In the case of bankruptcy, as long as assets remain in a Registered Retirement Savings Plan (RRSP) or Registered Retirement Income Fund (RRIF), they may be protected from creditors. That protection applies to locked-in Retirement Accounts (LIRAs), Life income funds (LIFs) and Locked in Retirement Income Funds (LRIFs). Consult a tax or legal advisor about your individual circumstances.

The federal government provides protection to RRSPs and RRIFs in the event of bankruptcy with the exception of contributions made within 12 Months of declaring bankruptcy which are not protected. Other protection may be available under provincial legislation.
