SENIOR DRAMA IS ON NOW!! And we have extremely exciting news! This year our Rocanville School Drama Club will be heading to the Region 1 Drama Festival which is being hosted by McNaughton High School in Moosomin. We will take our show on the road and showcase our talents to other schools and audiences from southeastern Saskatchewan. There will also be prizes up for grabs, such as various acting awards, numerous technical awards such as stage managers, lighting crew, etc., and the large prize "Best Overall Performance." This is an exciting opportunity that both the members and directors are looking forward to!

We will once again be hosting an evening performance on Tuesday, March 24th for family and community members where advance tickets will be sold. You may purchase these tickets from the office or a drama member. Tickets will go on sale the beginning of March. This is our last show before we hit the road and we need you to cheer us on. Region 1 Festival is being held the weekend of March 26th-28th and we hope that some of our biggest fans come to support us in Moosomin as we compete against other productions!

We are so eager to showcase our talents both at home and on the road and we hope you are too!

Drinking Water Quality and Compliance

Annual Notice to Consumers

Town of Rocanville

Introduction

The Water Security Agency and the Ministry of Environment requires that at least once each year waterworks owners provide notification to consumers of the quality of water produced and supplied as well as information on the performance of the waterworks in submitting samples as required by a Minister's Order or Permit to Operate a waterworks. The following is a summary of the Town of Rocanville's water quality and sample submission compliance record for the January 1 – December 31, 2014 time period. This report was completed on January 2, 2015. Readers should refer to Water Security Agency's Municipal Drinking Water Quality Monitoring Guidelines, November 2002, EPB 202 for more information on minimum sample submission requirements and the meaning of type of sample. Permit requirements for a specific waterworks may require more sampling than outlined in the department's monitoring guidelines. If consumers need more information on the nature and significance of specific water tests, for example, "what is the significance of Selenium in a water supply", more detailed information is available from: http://www.hc-sc.gc.ca/ewh-semt/pubs/water-eau/index_e.html.

Tests are normally performed on a daily basis by the waterworks operator and are to be recorded in operation records. This data includes the number of free chlorine residual tests performed, the overall range of free chlorine residual (highest and lowest recorded values) and the number of tests and percentage of results not meeting the minimum requirement of 0.1 mg/L free chlorine residual.

All waterworks serving less than 5000 persons are required to submit water samples for SE's Chemical Health category once every 2 years. The Chemical Health category includes analysis for arsenic, barium, boron, cadmium, chromium, fluoride, lead, nitrate, selenium and uranium.

The last sample for Chemical Health analysis was submitted on August 25, 2014. Sample results indicated that the provincial drinking water quality standards were not exceeded.

All waterworks serving less than 5000 persons are required to submit water samples for SE's General Chemical category once every two years if a ground water source and once per three months every second year if a surface water or blended surface/groundwater source. The General Chemical category includes analysis for alkalinity, bicarbonate, calcium, carbonate, chloride, conductivity, hardness (as CaCO₃), magnesium, sodium, sulphate and total dissolved solids.

The last sample for General Chemical analysis was required on 2014 and submitted on August 25, 2014. Sample results indicated that there were no exceedences of the provincial aesthetic objectives for the General Chemical category.

*Objectives apply to certain characteristics of or substances found in water for human consumptive or hygienic use. The presence of these substances will affect the acceptance of water by consumers and/or interfere with the practice of supplying good quality water. Compliance with drinking water aesthetic objectives is not mandatory as these objectives are in the range where they do not constitute a health hazards. The aesthetic objectives for several parameters (including hardness as CaCO₃, magnesium, sodium and total dissolved solids) consider regional differences in drinking water sources and quality.

Home Sweet First Home

Are you ready for the big leap?

Building your career, paying back student loans, establishing a credit rating, buying your first home – if you're like most Canadians in their 20s and 30s, you probably have a lot on the go.

A home may be the biggest purchase you ever make, so it's important to know that you can comfortably afford to buy and maintain it. If you have a partner or spouse, it's equally important to communicate openly and regularly about your feelings and expectations about money, your home and your overall financial plan. Before you start visiting open houses, here are some helpful steps to review.

Save for your down payment

One of the first steps is to set a goal for your down payment and create a plan to reach it. Consider setting up an automatic savings plan with pre-authorized contributions from your chequing account to a high-interest savings account. Choose an account that pays interest on every dollar, regardless of the balance.

Put down as much as you comfortably can and you'll be rewarded with a shorter mortgage term and reduce interest costs. If you have at least 20 per cent down payment, you likely won't require mortgage loan insurance, which protects the lender if you default on your mortgage loan. Mortgage loan insurance is offered by the Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation (www.cmhc-schl.gc.ca), Genworth Financial (www.genworth.ca) or Canada Guaranty (www.canadaguaranty.ca).

Determine how much you can afford

To work out how much you can afford, consider factors such as your down payment amount, household income, other monthly debt payments, estimated housing-related costs and closing costs.

Housing-related costs are recurring expenses that may include utilities, phone and cable, maintenance, home insurance, mortgage insurance, property taxes and condo fees (if applicable). Closing costs are one-time charges paid at the time your home purchase closes.

Typically, they can include legal fees, appraisal fees, home inspection fees, title insurance, service charges for connecting utilities, a land transfer tax and moving expenses.

As a good rule of thumb, your mortgage payments, other monthly debt payments and housing-related costs shouldn't exceed 40 per cent of your gross annual income.

Stay on top of your credit record

Every time you pay a bill or apply for credit, two credit reporting agencies (or credit bureaus) – Equifax Canada (www.equifax.ca) and TransUnion Canada (www.transunion.ca) – take note. This information is used to calculate your credit score, which is a key measure a lender will consider when deciding whether to offer you a mortgage. Information is kept on file as long as 14 years, so it's important that you ensure the credit records are up to date and correct. Each will release your file to you at your request. Their processes differ, so visit their websites for more information.

Get pre-approved

If you're serious about buying a home, consider getting pre-approved for a mortgage. This process will identify exactly how much the lender is willing to lend you, provide you with an estimate of your payments and give you the opportunity to lock in at the current interest rate until a particular date.

Pre-approval doesn't mean you have to get a mortgage with that lender, nor does it cost you.

Talk to your spouse about priorities and concerns

In addition to the financial aspects of buying and owning a home with someone, it's also important to regularly communicate about the emotional side of money, including your spending and saving priorities and habits.

You may love trying out a new restaurant each month, while your partner may like to splurge on the latest gadgets. That's fine. It just means that you need to set clear expectations with each other on how you will use your discretionary income.

It's important to discuss expectations and goals for the money you've saved as well. One person may be expecting to put some savings towards new flooring, while the other may be eyeing a new leather sofa. Or one person may feel it's very important to save for retirement, while the other may have vacations as a priority. The goal is to ensure that you understand your monthly cash flow, talk about your finances openly and do not overspend and accumulate debt.

Work with a financial professional

Whether you're looking to purchase your first home in a few months or a bit further down the road, a financial professional can help you create a savings plan and a suitable cash flow plan. An advisor can also help facilitate important discussions between you and your partner. If you don't already have an advisor, reach out to one. And when you have a plan in place you're your partner, review your progress regularly with each other.

Take Advantage of Government Programs

You may be eligible to take advantage of the Home Buyers' Plan to withdraw up to $25,000 from your Registered Retirement Savings Plan (RRSP) tax-free to use as a down payment on your first home. Keep in mind that you have to pay back the money within 15 years starting in the second calendar year following the year of withdrawal. If the scheduled payment is not made, that amount is included in your income for that calendar year. Consult your tax and legal advisors with respect to your particular circumstances.

In addition, the First-Time Home Buyers' Tax Credit is available to reduce the costs associated with a first home purchase. Either spouse can claim the credit or you can share the credit. However, the total of both claims cannot exceed $5,000.
