The whole deal

Whole life insurance provides lifelong protection with valuable additional features.

Choosing the right life insurance solution for your situation is extremely important – but the process can feel overwhelming since there are so many different products available.

There's term life insurance, which offers straightforward coverage for a specific number of years. There's universal life insurance, which provides lifelong protection and includes the opportunity for tax-sheltered investment growth. Often less well understood is whole life insurance, which provides lifelong protection, like universal life insurance, but with different features.

How does whole life insurance work?

Whole life insurance is what's known as a permanent insurance policy. Regardless of how long someone lives and whatever health issues that person encounters, beneficiaries will receive the guaranteed death benefit. The only requirement is that premium payments – often referred to as modal policy payments – must continue to be made according to a set annual or monthly schedule.

With some whole life insurance policies, beneficiaries may receive more than the death benefit, which is the face amount on the policy. They may also get the amount of "paid-up insurance." This is extra coverage the policyholder bought either using the policy's earnings or by depositing additional payments. In some policies, paid-up insurance only increases the death benefit. In others, it also increases the policy's "cash value."

The cash value is an amount that accumulates inside the policy which the policyholder can access while still alive. Not all whole life insurance policies have a cash value, but it is a useful feature that offers flexibility if the policyholder needs an extra source of funds. Some policies offer guaranteed cash values, providing helpful certainty for planning.

Many whole life insurance policies offer another useful feature: the choice to arrange to pay off the entire policy by a certain age (e.g., 90 or 100) or in a specific number of years (e.g., 10 or 20 years). The latter option, also known as limited pay, allows the policyholder to pay all the modal policy payments early on. This can help with planning because it ensures no more payments are due after retirement or at a time when someone anticipates needing funds for extra care at home or perhaps in a long-term care facility.

How do policies add value?

Different policies offer a variety of extras that can add value for policyholders, such as:

- Allowing policyholders to make extra deposits that build cash value and/or face value
- Offering annual performance credits that build the policy's cash value and/or face value
- Offering annual dividends that build the policy's face value and cash value
- Facilitating cash value withdrawals when needed – note that these withdrawals are generally subject to tax, but may be tax-free if the policyholder becomes disabled
- Allowing the policyholder to use the cash value as collateral for a bank loan
- Permitting the policyholder to decrease the policy's face value as their needs change

It may also be possible to add features through riders – for example, increasing protection with term life insurance, including the option to skip payments if the policyholder becomes disabled, and protecting children and guaranteeing they will qualify for their own policies when they grow up.

Who can benefit?

Like all life insurance, whole life insurance can be part of an overall strategy to maximize your legacy, providing a guaranteed, tax-efficient death benefit that you can pass on to the next generation. It can also fund a sizeable charitable donation.

The cash value makes it possible to access money if needed – for example, to pay for unexpected costs such as home repairs or home care services. Also, the cash value grows on a tax-deferred basis, meaning taxes are due only on withdrawn amounts, making this a tax-efficient way to build wealth.

We can help you decide what type of life insurance is most appropriate in your circumstances and explain the ins and outs of various whole life insurance policies. Once you've made your choice, you'll know you've implemented a strategy that helps to optimize your estate plan and provide a secure legacy to your beneficiaries.

ROYAL WOOD

Tuesday, May 10, 2022 @ 7:30PM Moosomin Community Theatre

Singer, songwriter, multi-instrumentalist and producer Royal Wood has established himself as a true musical talent. Since being proclaimed "Songwriter of the Year" by iTunes, Wood has continued to evolve and hone his musical craft - maintaining an unmistakable identity while uncovering and reinventing his sound. The JUNO-Award-nominated artist is inspired by both loss and love; his songs are an ode to the classic styles of Tin Pan Alley and Laurel Canyon. You might also recognize his music from being featured in critically acclaimed television programs such as "Grey's Anatomy" and "Private Practice". Royal has also toured with legendary artists Bonnie Raitt and David Gray. Royal Wood hasn't let the pandemic slow him down. He and his wife Alison had their first child Henry John Royal. He recently released his "Live at Massey Hall" album and is currently wrapping up his busy year by recording his new full studio album remotely in Toronto with Montreal-based producer Marcus Paquin (The National, Arcade Fire). The album features songs co-written with powerhouse musician Linda Perry (Adele, Alicia Keys) and UK phenom Jamie Scott (Ed Sheeran, Justin Bieber). The new album will be released in Fall 2022.

I'd love to meet you!

My name is Tricia Colvin and I'm a new Wealth Specialist at Thrive Wealth Management in the Rocanville area. I want to get to know our community a bit more, so on Friday, May 6, 2022 from 1 p.m. – 4 p.m. I'm hosting a meet and greet with cake and coffee at the Conexus Rocanville branch (123 Ellice St, Rocanville, SK)

A little bit about me

I grew up in rural Saskatchewan in a household where money was never talked about openly. When I came to the credit union nine years ago, it was important for me to be able to have open conversations with members about their relationship with money and what money meant to them. At Thrive Wealth Management, I want to continue to have open conversations and build long-lasting relationships with my clients. My goal is to help educate people about their finances and offer them advice and solutions for their lives. Whether you're a young family looking to save RESP's for your kids or you're about to enter retirement, I'd love to get to know you and see how I can help you along your financial journey.

I look forward to meeting you, and I hope you can join me for cake and coffee!

- Future hours:
- Rocanville Branch: Every second Friday 9:30 a.m. – 4:00p.m. (starting May 6)
 - Moosomin Branch Every Wednesday 9:30 a.m. – 4:00 p.m.

Dial –A-Van Announcement

Unfortunately due to our low ridership and shortage of volunteer drivers, we will not be operating the Dial-A-Van from May 1st until October 2022. We are very grateful to all those donors who have supported the bus in the past. Also thank you to those riders who have made use of the service. We are sorry we are unable to continue the service for the summer because our volunteers are all retired and feel they don't want to spend many days sitting waiting for calls which rarely come. Hopefully our ridership improves in the fall and we can keep our volunteer drivers busy. We will advise the public when we resume our service. Maybe with covid in the background our ridership will improve and if not we could lose the service in the future.

Along life's dull and common road.

Give me not riches in gold or silver

But a little thing like a smile to lighten my load.
